Kennedy Calls Goldberg Tour "Worthwhile"

Labor Chief Completes Mission

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg returned Sunday night from a five-state inspection tour of unemployment areas with word that President Kennedy has found the mission "very worthwhile."

Goldberg said he put in a phone call to Kennedy before leaving Pittsburgh, Pa., last stop on his trip. The President was at his Middleburg, Va., country place, about 45 miles from Washington.

"The President told me he had followed the trip with great interest," the labor secretary said. "He thought it was very worthwhile."

Goldberg said that in talking with idled workers and their families, with businessmen, labor leaders and community leaders he found widespread support for Kennedy's program aimed at restoring the nation to full production and employment.

Saying Kennedy is proposing both short-term and long-term economic uplift measures, Goldberg added: "We can, we must and we will deal with problems we saw on this trip."

The labor secretary said the country is suffering from an inherited recession, but he insisted again that the purpose of his tour, one of several he said he will make, was not political.

Before leaving Pittsburgh, the labor secretary appeared in a CBS-TV interview — "Washington

Boys' Missile Mouse Killed

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — A tiny white mouse perished Sunday as four high school seniors attempted to fire him more than 1,000 feet into the air, astronaut style, and return him to earth in a para-chute.

But even though the mouse did not survive, the boys termed the missile launching a "physics" success.

The boys estimated the missile, an eight-pounder called "Mico," traveled 1,024 feet into the air as a crowd of about 150 persons looked on. But the nose cone carrying the mouse jarred free from the rocket prematurely, a parachute did not pop out, and the mouse hurtled to earth after a two-second ride.

Builders and launchers of the missile were Fred Hill, John Lampe Jr., Gerald Reed and Terry Babb.

U.S. Considers Bonn Aid Offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talks started within the administration this weekend to determine what position the United States should adopt toward a German offer of assistance to ease the American balance of payments deficit.

Meanwhile, it was learned Sunday, State Department experts assured German diplomats here that U.S. dissatisfaction with West Germany's offer has no effect on stated U.S. intentions to safeguard West Berlin.

The German proposals, made Feb. 2, offered an aid package totaling less than $1 billion.

The official U.S. reply will be given to German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano when he visits Washington next Thursday.

As the preparatory talks within the administration progress, it is expected that Secretary of State Dean Rusk will sit down with Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon to draft the reply.

Some influential German newspapers have suggested that President Kennedy and Rusk "forgot" to list Berlin when they talked about the world's trouble spots because they consider the German aid proposal unsatisfactory.

American officials called such thinking groundless. German diplomats in Washington agreed.

USSR Tells French Side Of "Buzzing"

Papers Publish Text But With Statement Declaring It False

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians yielded Sunday to a French request to publish France's version of the Brezhnev plane incident, but side by side with it was a Soviet Foreign Office statement declaring it false.

All major papers published texts of the French reply to the Soviet note, in which the French insisted the Soviet plane carrying President Leonid Brezhnev on a visit to Morocco and Guinea had swung too far south Thursday over the Mediterranean. This, the French contend, caused three French jet fighters to buzz the presidential plane, and one of them fired tracer across its nose.

French Say Plan Not Followed

The French agreed they had received the flight plan, but added this plan had not been fully followed, since the Soviet plane deviated southward. It said warning shots were fired as signals only when the Soviet plane failed to respond to two attempts by the fighter planes to communicate by radio.

Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, in a reply to the French ministry counselor Jean de la Grandville, said the French had no right to demand that the Soviet plane identify itself when it was flying over the open sea.

Gromyko's statement, as published Sunday, added sardonically,

"Even if the crew of the French warplane did not have a single literate person who could read the markings (on the plane), could not the French fliers see a two-meter-large Soviet national flag on the plane?"

Conflicting Versions

Gromyko insisted the French plane opened fire on the president's plane, although the French declare the shots were signals and not fired at the plane. The Soviet plane was not hit.

Gromyko acknowledged French expressions of regret, but for all Soviet newspaper readers repeated his request that the French fliers be punished and warned that any attempt to "whitewash" acts of "international banditry" is a "risky undertaking."

France Rejects Russian Terms

PARIS (UPI) — France Sunday rejected the terms used in a Soviet note demanding the punishment of the fliers responsible for the buzzing of the airliner of President Leonid Brezhnev.

Foreign ministry sources said the Russian demands were "inadmissible." They said a note stating the French position had been delivered Sunday in Moscow to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

The sources did not specify which of the Soviet terms were "inadmissible."

The Russian note, delivered Saturday in Moscow to French Charge

Affaires Jean de la Grandville, demanded punishment of the pilots involved in the "buzzing," but France takes measures to prevent future such incidents, and that France deliver a report on the steps taken.

The "buzzing" incident occurred Thursday off the Algerian coast when French jets fired warning bursts near a Soviet airliner.

The plane was carrying Brezhnev to a state visit with King Mohammad V in Morocco.

Latin American Aid Hopes Seen Raised Too High

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the House Foreign Affairs Committee voiced concern Sunday that many persons in Latin America have exaggerated hopes of a massive U. S. aid program.

Rep. Armistead I. Selden Jr., D-Ala., and Dante B. Fascell, D-Tex., reported on a trip they made late last year to Argentina, Brazil, Bolivia, Chile, Panama and Venezuela. Selden is chairman of the Latin-American Affairs subcommittee.

They told Congress: "We fear that many Latin Americans, even the knowledgeable ones who are aware of our gold drain" and other problems, have "exaggerated hopes that the new administration will propose a massive aid program for Latin America similar to the Marshall Plan."

Such outlays, they said, are "not only beyond our capacity to supply but are also beyond that region's present capacity to absorb."

Selden and Fascell suggested instead close and sympathetic attention to Latin America's problems, practical programs of economic and technical aid, and more emphatic efforts by Latin Americans themselves to clear away obstacles to their progress.

President Kennedy has asked Congress to appropriate in full a $500-million fund for economic development of Latin America. And he has ordered a food-for-peace mission to visit the area and learn how U. S. food surpluses can be used to help end hunger and malnutrition.

George S. McGovern, head of the food-for-peace program who will make a personal survey of Latin America this week, said no effort will be made to pressure other countries to conform their agriculture to U. S. ideas.

Kennedy Drives Through Virginia Snow To Mass

MIDDLEBURG, Va. (AP) — President Kennedy drove through four inches of new fallen snow Sunday morning to attend Mass in the Middleburg Community Center.

The chief executive is spending his first weekend away from the White House at Glen Ora, a country estate 1½ miles outside the town. He rented the estate sight unseen as a spot in which to get away from some of the pressures of his office.

Mrs. Kennedy, who spent an hour Saturday horseback riding in a country where this is a favorite sport, had a cold Sunday and did not accompany her husband to Mass.

A wet, heavy snow came through the night and piled up to nearly 18 inches which ... last day's routine.

The President drove through the stone gateway at Glen Ora along a lane where shrubs and trees, festooned with snow, looked like fancy lace.

His car, with a Secret Service man at the wheel, went for a quarter of a mile through a canyon carved in snowdrifts by a plow. The snow was 10 feet deep at places.

After church services, Kennedy came back to Glen Ora and took his daughter Caroline, 3, for a sleigh ride. He trudged around the snow-covered paths, pulling Caroline on her sled.

There was nothing on the schedule after lunch, other than more reading and poring over reports and papers—a repetition of Saturday's routine.

15 Burned To Death In Religious Feud

BOMBAY, India (AP) — Fifteen persons were locked in a house and burned to death Friday in the grimest tragedy yet in bitter Hindu-Moslem feuding in Madhya Pradesh State.

Unofficial figures show 47 persons have been killed in rioting and other violence near Jubilee in the last eight days.

The latest incident occurred at the village of Sarupa. Twelve members of the band which locked the 15 in the house and burned it were arrested.

A police announcement did not say whether those burned were Hindus or Moslems.

Religious feuding started in Jubileepore after the alleged rape of a Hindu girl by two Moslems. Police restored order in the town after arresting more than 500 persons and imposing a curfew.

South African Paper Reports Lumumba Slain

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The Sunday Tribune says proof is lacking, but the most favored story in Elisabethville is that Patrice Lumumba was slain the night of Jan. 17 when he arrived at that Katanga capital as a battered prisoner.

The hunt for Congo ex-Premier Lumumba is officially still on, the Tribune said Sunday in an Elisabethville dispatch, "with spotter planes and helicopters scouring the area and roadblocks flung across all exit routes."

"But here in Elisabethville everyone smiles knowingly when the escape is mentioned. The most favored story says Lumumba, battered and bedraggled, was shot the same night he was flown blindfolded into Elisabethville."

"The elaborate farce of his imprisonment was maintained, the knowing ones say, so his body could be found officially just a few hours before the United Nations meets in New York to vote on whether all political prisoners in the Congo should be freed."

"President Moise Tshombe of Katanga, so the story goes, will refuse to say where Lumumba's body was found for fear of laying the tribesmen in that area open to reprisals later from pro-Lumumbists. All Tshombe will show, sources here maintain, will be photographs of the dead Lumumba and his coprisoners. It is hinted that the bodies will bear marks of burning, but will nevertheless still be recognizable."

"However, it must be emphasized that nobody has any reliable information on whether Lumumba really escaped or whether it is all just a political fabrication."

The Katanga government has officially denied its announcement of the escape Friday was manufactured to cover up an assassination plot. It said Lumumba and two associates flown to Katanga by the central Congo government for safekeeping — Senate Vice President Joseph Okito and former Youth Minister Maurice Mpolo — escaped by car from a farmhouse prison. It hinted that the plane was carrying Brezhnev to a state visit with King

Mohammad V in Morocco.

Color Incident Stirs South Africa Storm

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A German schoolteacher down might cost this country in and his family are reported facing trade and good will.

The teacher is Victor Niedermayer. Published accounts said Interior Department officials have notified him he must leave when his visa expires June 2 on the ground the incident was an affront to South Africa's racial segregation policy.

Niedermayer was not available for comment. Reported to have come to Johannesburg from Munich, he barricaded the family's suburban apartment and refused to admit reporters or photographers.

Sympathetic newsmen quoted him as saying earlier, however, that he saw nothing wrong in letting the children—aged 4 to 9—spend a holiday with their nurse, Maria, at her home near Standerton, 100 miles southeast of this city. That was last December. The appearance of the white children at the African dwelling had created a local scandal.

"They loved her very much," Niedermayer was reported to have explained. "It was like a camping vacation, except that the children slept in a hut instead of a tent."

His case has been taken up by one of South Africa's most widely known political commentators—Davie.

That is the pen name of editor Piet Cillie of the Cape Town Die Burger, an influential Afrikaans-language newspaper which normally supports Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's ruling Nationalist party.

But Davie claims South Africa is making a mistake, that "this case and a whole series of these color incidents are going to cost this country" heavily in adverse publicity and lost trade.

There is a large, rich and influential German colony in South Africa which might be specially offended.

Congo Relief Vessel Docks At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—Dockside ceremonies were conducted Sunday for a heavily-laden food supply ship bound for the strife-torn Congo.

Seven hundred tons of corn meal were loaded aboard the S. S. African Pilot.

The shipment is part of supplies being provided by the United States through the United Nations to help avert famine in the Congo.

The special ceremony and preparations were witnessed by George McGovern, director of the Foods for Peace Program, and a group of Washington dignitaries.

Prior to docking here, the ship loaded 500 tons of corn meal at Philadelphia. An additional 700 tons of rice will be taken on at Norfolk.

The ship will journey a few miles up the Congo River to Madi dadi where the food will be relayed to Kasai Province for distribution among Baluba tribesmen.

A four-man team of experts will be sent to the Congo this week to survey further relief needs. The group will be led by Henry W. Wiens, former deputy assistant secretary of labor for international affairs. Last Friday, Wiens was sworn in as U. S. Foreign Aid Representative to the Congo.

Wiens' official position in the Congo will be that of representative of the International Cooperation Administration, the agency which handles U. S. foreign aid.

New Sputnik

The launching Sunday, was hailed as "blazing the first path to planets of the solar system."

Venus circles the sun at an average distance of about 67 million miles.

It is sometimes called the morning star, sometimes the evening star, and like the earth is enveloped in cloud-laden atmosphere. Astronomers have been able to determine how long it takes to revolve on its axis.

The Russians said the main object of the probe is to check methods of putting a space body into interplanetary trajectory.

It also is designed to check radio communications over super-long distances and the guiding of a space station, to check more exactly the size of the solar system and to carry out a program of physical observations in outer space, it was announced.

The station is broadcasting on an ultrahigh frequency of 922.8 megacycles per second in order to penetrate the earth's ionosphere.

The Russians are aiming at Venus when it will be about 30 million miles from the earth. Venus comes nearer the earth than any other planet. Communications from that area would set a new record in space communication. At present the mark is held by the United States. Pioneer V, launched last March from Cape Canaveral in a sun-circling orbit, lost contact at 22.5 million miles when its batteries failed.

The space station apparently can be guided from the earth by radio signals, as the announcement said it had "received commands from the earth."

Scots Rally To Answer Brazilian's Song Plea

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—People all over Scotland rallied round to answer a desperate plea from Brazil: "How does the song 'Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag' go?"

The plea came from Toby Dod of Sao Paulo, who is putting on a play and wanted a copy of the song made famous by the late Scottish entertainer Will Fyffe.

Dod couldn't find the words or music of the song in Brazil so he wrote to friends, the MacIntyre family, in Glasgow. They thought it would be easy.

But by the time the MacIntyres had been to every music shop in Glasgow without success they began to have doubts. They widened their search and wrote or telephoned every music dealer in Scotland. Not one had a copy of the song.

Finally they made a tape recording of one of the records and mailed it Sunday to Toby Dod in Sao Paulo. Pretty soon he'll know just how "Dr. MacGregor and His Wee Black Bag" goes.

Grandmothers, teen-agers and ailed aunts from Skye to Auchtermuchty wrote, offering advice and assistance. Phonograph records arrive by the dozen—many of them in broken pieces by the time they reached the MacIntyre family.

Even though they are in your 50's, 60's, or 70's you likely need and want life insurance coverage just as much as anyone else.

So far no other children have been picked up.

Children Try To Rob Bank

PIITTSBURGH (AP)—Some children, the youngest a 7-year-old girl, entered a bank on the city's North Side Sunday in an apparent attempt to rob the place, officials of the bank reported.

Private detectives and police converged on the scene after an alarm had been set off. Officers found the girl and her 8-year-old brother outside the bank.

"They weren't trying to get away," a spokesman for the Mellon Bank said. "I don't think they realized the seriousness of the thing."

The bank official said police questioning of the children revealed this: Some older boys, about 12, forced the girl to climb through a bank window Saturday and open a door. The group returned Sunday to rob the bank.

About $3 was missing from a petty cash box.

The bank spokesman said the burglar alarm was on a drawer too high for the girl and her brother to reach. He said some taller boys apparently were in the bank before police arrived.

Even though you are in your 50's, 60's, or 70's you likely need and want life insurance coverage just as much as anyone else.

Tehran Students Return To Classes

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—After a 12-day interruption, Tehran University resumed classes Sunday. Students who have been demonstrating instead of studying returned to their classes.

A comparatively small portion of the university student body, which is estimated to total several thousand, has been engaged in election campaigning and demonstrations in the past days.

Color Incident Stirs South Africa Storm

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A German schoolteacher and his family are reported facing expulsion from South Africa because he let his three children spend a vacation at the clay hut of their Negro nurse.

A storm raged in newspapers about the case Sunday, with spec-

The teacher is Victor Niedermayer. Published accounts said Interior Department officials have notified him he must leave when his visa expires June 2 on the front of South Africa's racial segregation policy.

Niedermayer was not available for comment. Reported to have come to Johannesburg from Munich, he barricaded the family's suburban apartment and refused to admit reporters or photographers.

Sympathetic newsmen quoted him as saying earlier, however, that he saw nothing wrong in letting the children—aged 4 to 9—spend a holiday with their nurse, Maria, at her hut near Standerton, 100 miles southeast of this city. That was last December. The appearance of the white children at the African dwelling had created a local scandal.

"They loved her very much," Niedermayer was reported to have explained. "It was like a family.

Congo Relief Vessel Docks At Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP) — Dockside ceremonies were conducted Sunday for a heavily-laden food supply ship bound for the strife-torn Congo.

Seven hundred tons of corn meal were loaded aboard the S. S. Africam Pilot.

The shipment is part of supplies being provided by the United States through the United Nations to help avert famine in the Congo.

The special ceremony and preparations were witnessed by George McGovern, director of the Foods for Peace Program, and a group of Washington dignitaries.

Prior to docking here, the ship loaded 500 tons of corn meal at Philadelphia. An additional 700 tons of rice will be taken on at Norfolk.

The ship will journey a few miles up the Congo River to Madiadi where the food will be relayed to Kasai Province for distribution among Baluba tribesmen.

A four-man team of experts will be sent to the Congo this week to survey further relief needs. The group will be led by Henry W. Wiens, former deputy assistant secretary of labor for international affairs. Last Friday, Wiens was sworn in as U. S. Foreign Aid Representative to the Congo.

Wiens' official position in the Congo will be that of representative of the International Cooperation Administration, the agency which handles U. S. foreign aid.

New Sputnik

The launching Sunday, was hailed as "blazing the first path to planets of the solar system."

Venus circles the sun at an average distance of about 67 million miles.

It is sometimes called the morning star, sometimes the evening star, and like the earth is enveloped in cloud-laden atmosphere.

Astronomers have been able to determine how long it takes to revolve on its axis.

The Russians said the main object of the probe is to check methods of putting a space body into interplanetary trajectory.

It also is designed to check radio communications over super-long distances and the guiding of a space station, to check more exactly the size of the solar system and to carry out a program of physical observations in outer space, it was announced.

The station is broadcasting on an ultrahigh frequency of 922.8 megacycles per second in order to penetrate the earth's ionosphere.

The Russians are aiming at Venus when it will be about 30 million miles from the earth. Venus comes nearer the earth than any other planet. Communications from that area would set a new record in space communication. At present the mark is held by the United States. Pioneer V, launched last March from Cape Canaveral in a sun-circling orbit, lost contact at 22.5 million miles when its batteries failed.

The space station apparently can be guided from the earth by radio signals, as the announcement said it had "received commands from the earth."

Deaths Of Five Send 1961 Md. Fire Toll To 40

By The Associated Press

The toll of persons killed in Maryland fires this year rose to 40 this weekend, with the deaths of five persons.

Killed in Saturday fires were 72-year-old Allan DeChaney and his bed-ridden sister-in-law, Mrs. Madge Hole, 87, at their home in Brandywine, Prince Georges County.

Mrs. Hole was a half sister of Dorothy Ann Shoemaker of New York, a movie actress. Authorities said DeChaney apparently was cut off before he could reach the door of the flaming house.

In other Saturday fires, Clyde Smith, 66, died in his trailer home in St. Marys County at Valley Lee, and in Baltimore, 44-year-old Booker T. Tillman was trapped in a burning apartment house and died.

The fifth victim, Primus Hicks of Baltimore, died at a hospital Saturday as a result of burns he had suffered in a fire at his home last Thursday.

Youth Escapes Death By Inches

SEATON CAREW, England (AP) — A cart horse named Tony bolted into the rough sea off this east coast resort Sunday and drowned. Tony broke away from his cart while parked on the beach. George Robinson, his owner, followed him into the water. The 5-year-old horse swam strongly out to sea for half a mile and Robinson struggled along behind, calling out "Tony." Then the big waves closed over Tony's head—and Robinson swam back to shore alone.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Maryland youth could count his good fortune by inches Sunday—in escaping almost certain death in a three-car crash on the icy Baltimore-Washington Parkway.

U. S. Park Police Pvt. James D. Oliver said the youth, William F. Ruehl Jr., 18, of Ellicott City, Md., was standing outside his car after a crash Saturday night with another auto. A third car, Oliver said, sheared off Ruehl's coat tails and then struck his car.

Police said a passenger in Ruehl's car, Sharon Lenz, 18, a student nurse at Maryland General Hospital in Baltimore, was treated at Prince Georges General Hospital for neck injuries and released.

Oliver said Ruehl's car had struck another driven by Melvin Bracey, 27, of Baltimore, who had slowed down because of a minor two-car accident occurring a few minutes before.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Maryland week ago assumed blame for the congressmen have been urged to Feb. 3 murder of a young Kentington woman.

Detective Lt. F. P. Threlkell said a note was found behind the sun visor of the car in which Charles Irwin Curtis, 36, shot himself as police closed in on him.

The detective said Curtis wrote on a notebook page that he was sorry for the death of Miss Eleanor A. Lawrence, 27, a National Cancer Institute clerk. She was shot in the head while putting tire chains on her auto in Kensington, during a snow storm.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Two men were killed and one woman injured held without bail for jured in separate fights Saturday night.

The dead were Alfred L. Jackson, 37, and Sidney Vance, 36. Shot in the neck and in fair condition was Jackson's 38-year-old wife Ruth.

Police said the Jackson shootings occurred during an argument in the couple's home. Vance was killed with a knife at an apartment near his home, and police were questioning a 40-year-old suspect.

Williams Joins Hospital Staff

Paul D. Williams, a native of Trenton, Ky., has been appointed head of the microbiology and biochemistry departments at Memorial Hospital.

He is a three-year veteran of the Air Force, is married and the father of three children.

Mr. Williams received B. S. and M. S. degrees from the University of Kentucky.

Since 1956 he has been head of the Maryland State Health Department laboratory in Annapolis.

Dr. Benedict Skitarec will continue as Memorial Hospital pathologist and head of its hematology department.

Budget Delay Granted

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, has requested the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to grant the Board of Education additional time to submit its budget for the next fiscal year.

Mr. Webster said the budget is rather complex and more time is needed to compile the various items.

The commissioners will notify Mr. Webster that the deadline for the budget to be submitted will be extended until February 28.

Family Of Five Left Homeless

A family of five persons was left homeless Friday when their home located on the Old Cumberland Road, near the Pennsylvania line on the east slope of Polish Mountain, was leveled by fire.

Left homeless were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pifer and their three young children, who lost all their possessions and have only the clothes on their backs. They are staying with Mr. Pifer's mother who lives about a mile and a half away on the same road.

Mr. Pifer and his family had been staying with his mother because his supply of firewood ran out and he had been unable to cut more because of the deep snow. He returned to his home Friday to cut some timber into stove lengths and then built a fire in a heating stove to warm up the home before bringing his family back.

After the fire in the stove began to burn, Mr. Pifer went back to his mother's home to get his family. On their return to their own home they found only charred and smoking ruins.

Mr. Pifer has been furloughed from the B & O rolling mill here since last August. He is 21 years old.

IN A DAY'S WORK

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Mrs. Roy E. Declay says it's fun serving laundry-cleaner customers.

A woman dashed in, wearing a coat over her nightgown. The woman said she had to wear something to work and picked up her freshly cleaned dress. Another time a man came in and asked for "a shirt out of my bundle." The man said he'd pick up the rest after work, that he was going to change shirts at the office.

HIS AND HERS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The election of Sandra Dee and Bobby Darin as "co-mayors" of Universal City gives the film municipality the nation's first "His and Hers" mayors.

The 18-year-old movie star and her singer-husband who eloped last December following a whirlwind courtship while working together in Italy in the motion picture "Come September" officially took over administration of the 400-acre community at studio ceremonies.

Woman To Woman

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—A split-level clothes tree can help to cure the small and large clutter bugs in your house.

It's a telescopic pole with hooks jutting at two levels—one high enough for grown-ups and one low up for the little folks.

The split-personality pole is among thousands of new notions on display at the annual notion and novelty show in New York.

Notions, which used to just cover pins, needles and thread and cost from a penny to a dime, now include things on wheels, with non-evaporating chemicals and pleasant scents-ready to hang in the bathroom, kitchen or closet.

But change also is afoot in the button world.

The newest buttons on display at the notions show are egg-shaped—and almost egg-size.

The National Notion Association had to clear 200 rooms in the Trade Show Building to make enough room for its members to show its new wares.

The association estimates that the notion industry now moves $600 million worth of goods in a year.

Newest offerings also include a kit billed as "the first and only patented zipper repair tool."

Even if you're all thumbs about mechanical things, you're supposed to be able to use the tool and spare parts "to repair any type of zipper damage on practically all types of zippers."

The association said that its new frontier is "notions for men."

An entirely new product is being sold at the country's notion counters and—to say the least—making a hit," the association said.

It's a self-adjusting harness that slips on like a vest, holds a pair of rubber-lined shields in proper position to provide under-arm protection for men's sports shirts and jackets, as well as possibly sensitive or allergic skin.

For rainy weather, the notions makers are showing new vinyl raincoats made of exciting prints.

Beefing Up The Army's Airlift

President Kennedy's decision to beef up the Army's airlift capability should also strengthen the "quiet diplomacy" by which he plans to deal with potential limited-war situations around the world.

As advocates of "brushfire" preparedness have long maintained, the Soviets and Red Chinese would be less likely to take dangerous liberties in Laos, the Congo and other remote trouble spots if the U.S. Army had greater airborne mobility to meet its global commitments.

In the Middle East crisis of 1958, Soviet belligerence evaporated in the face of swift U.S. intervention in Lebanon. But this was a comparatively simple operation involving the landing of U.S. Marines from the 6th Fleet and the short-haul transport of Army airborne troops from West Germany.

Though the crises in Laos and the Congo present infinitely greater logistical problems, U.S. capacity for quick response in an emergency will be enhanced by the 53 cargo and transport planes, including the first jets, which are to be assigned to the airlift fleet starting in July.

This greater readiness for limited action complements the nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines upon which the nation already has lavished billions.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Sectarian Education

William J. Ryan, Sr., of Brooklyn writes me:

"Mr. Sokolsky, many of us would appreciate an article or two by you on the question of public funds to aid private (sectarian) education . . ."

Nothing in the Constitution says anything about the separation of Church and State. Not one word appears either in the body of the Constitution or in its Amendments which can be correctly construed as limiting education to a secular curriculum. The only reference to the subject is in the First Amendment which contains the clause:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof: . . ."

The term, "an establishment of a religion," taken in its meaning when the Constitution was written, can only refer to an established church, namely, one that is recognized as official, say, such as the Anglican Church in Great Britain, the Roman Catholic Church in Brazil, Judaism in Israel. The term has nothing to do with the free exercise of religion by citizens who may accept any church of their choice and change from one religion to another. Nor does it in any way forbid a state to establish a religion as the State of Massachusetts taxed its citizens to support the Congregational Church up to 1833.

In fact, it has generally been held that religion is a matter for each state and not for the Federal Government to deal with. Sunday-closing laws are therefore passed or not passed by State Legislatures not by Congress; released time for public school pupils to be educated in the religion of their forebears is a state not a national issue. Had the Mormons not got into a controversy with the Federal Government over bigamy, Utah could have had a state religion.

Religious institutions appeared at the very beginning of our history. The Episcopalians were here in 1607; the Roman Catholics in 1539; the Jews in 1654. The Congregationalists who became so important in New England appeared in America in 1620 and the Methodists in 1766.

The term separation of Church and State has gained excessive currency in recent years. Most of our early universities were established by religious groups, some to train their clergymen. Prior to the Revolutionary War, all the colleges and universities in America had been established by Protestant churches. In 1791, a Catholic college was established in Georgetown, which is now part of Washington, D. C., by Archbishop John Carroll of Maryland. The right of religious denominations to establish their own universities has never been questioned since the Dartmouth College case in 1819, in which the Chief Justice, John Marshall, held that a charter given to a college could not be transformed by acts of the State Legislatures.

This decision has never been changed either by constitutional Amendments or legislative action. Chancellor James Kent said of this case:

"... did more than any other single act proceeding from the authority of the United States to throw an impregnable barrier around all rights and franchises derived from the grant of government; and to give solidity and inviolability to the literary, charitable, religious, and commercial institutions of our country."

Since then, however, some of the sectarian universities such as Columbia which was Episcopalian or Princeton which was Presbyterian have become secular institutions. However, the Roman Catholics have established a large number of universities such as Fordham, Notre Dame, Villanova, etc. etc. The Jews have established Yeshiva University in New York.

All schools, colleges and universities, secular or denominational, are usually subsidized by both the state and federal governments by being exempted from taxation. Without this exemption, these institutions could not exist. Such large contributors to education as the various foundations usually do not discriminate against schools or colleges because of their religious or non-religious affiliations.

This is the situation as it exists at this moment. The present assumption by Roman Catholics is that President Kennedy's school aid program will be entirely secular and already Cardinal Spellman has voiced a protest. As, however, the program has not yet been presented to Congress in the form of an act of legislation, it is not final that the proposed school legislation in Congress will discriminate against religious educational institutions. The proposed New York State legislation to give each student $200 is really a measure to help support denominational colleges without raising the issue of the separation of Church and State.

He's At It Again

An Inspiring Interdenominational Gathering

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON, — Something truly inspiring happened at 8 o'clock Thursday morning in the Hotel Mayflower ballroom as the President of the United States, the vice President, and several members of the Cabinet—Catholic, Protestant and Jew—sat down together with delegates to the International Christian Conference at a prayer breakfast.

The occasion was the ninth annual Presidential prayer breakfast held under the auspices of the International Christian Leadership. Simultaneously in 20 states, governors were present at similar breakfasts.

There was no reference to the so-called "religious issue" in American politics unless it was implied in the remarks of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, who said:

"In recent months our nation has re-examined and reaffirmed the principle of separation of church and state. We cherish that principle and the protection that it affords the integrity of each man's soul. I'm sure the principle has no stronger defender than the man who sits with us this morning as the President of the United States.

"But we need to remember that the separation of church and state must never mean the separation of religious values from the lives of our public servants."

To the view of the fact that several months ago there was some doubt expressed that a Roman Catholic, as President, would attend any public functions concerned with religious matters on an interdenominational basis, the presence of President Kennedy was itself refutation of such a theory. He not only attended but made a speech in which he said:

"I think it is most appropriate that we should be gathered together for this morning's meeting. This country was founded by men and women who were dedicated or came to be dedicated to two propositions: First, a strong religious conviction, and secondly a recognition that this conviction could flourish only under a system of freedom.

In view of the fact that several months ago there was some doubt expressed that a Roman Catholic, as President, would attend any public functions concerned with religious matters on an interdenominational basis, the presence of President Kennedy was itself refutation of such a theory. He not only attended but made a speech in which he said:

"I think it is most appropriate that we should be gathered together for this morning's meeting. This country was founded by men and women who were dedicated or came to be dedicated to two propositions: First, a strong religious conviction, and secondly a recognition that this conviction could flourish only under a system of freedom.

And there are more tangible signs of change. A heavy flow of mail continues to come to the White House addressed to "President" Dwight D. Eisenhower. Until President Kennedy issued firm orders, there was no one in the government to handle it, or to provide the clerical help, paper, clips, etc., needed for responses.

On Capitol Hill, Ex-Vice President Richard M. Nixon's files stand unmoleded in a Senate Office Building corridor. Passersby can read boxes labeled "JK Voting Record—Cuba," "LBJ Appearances," "Rockefeller," and "The Religious Issue."

All of these subjects and countless more played their part in the political campaign. Historians in years to come probably will yearn for some of the material that stands unguarded and unsung for perusal by any individual with the curiosity and temerity to rifle through it.

At the White House itself, "Assistant President" Sherman Adams' office remains unoccupied, a symbol of Kennedy's determination to maintain close, direct contact with the administration he heads.

Ford's McNamara And GM's Wilson Both Have Foot-In-Mouth Tendency

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara, a production man and no public relations expert, is still somewhat shell-shocked.

Back in Detroit, while occupying the relatively peaceful life of a Ford executive, he chucked when Charley Wilson of General Motors used to put his foot in his mouth. Now McNamara has followed the same rocky road—and all right under the eyes of his watchful public relations assistant secretary, Arthur Sylvester, formerly of the Newark News.

In fact when McNamara and Sylvester finished their background session with Pentagon reporters at which McNamara discussed the so-called missile gap, they congratulated themselves on how well they had handled the press.

Next day it was different. President Kennedy read the story that there was no longer a missile gap and hit the ceiling. Quickly he tracked the story to his Secretary of Defense, asked for an explanation. McNamara and Sylvester both swore they had been misquoted, blamed reporters for the snafu.

WHAT REALLY HAPPENED—McNamara, wanting to please Pentagon reporters, and his new Assistant Secretary of Defense, Art Sylvester, had the boys in for a few drinks and a "back-grinder."

What he actually said was that there was no "destructive" missile gap, and that the United States could heap as much destruction on Russia as Russia could on us; therefore, missile war becomes unprofitable.

McNamara contended that neither side has enough intercontinental missiles right now to make the gap significant, but warned that the gap could become dangerous for the United States if we don't take vigorous action to close it.

THE FACTS — As far as this writer can ascertain from highly competent authorities, photographic evidence in the Pentagon shows

17 Russian ICBM bases with approximately 70 intercontinental missiles ready to fire.

In contrast, it is no secret that the United States has only two

ICBM bases. And it's probable that we have about a dozen missiles ready to fire.

During the period since this evidence was obtained, there are reports that Russia has put some missiles on railroad trains, has hurriedly shifted other bases. The number may have increased beyond two.

In addition, Russia has an estimated 1,000 intermediate range missiles, we have perhaps around 100.

Finally, the USSR has just launched a huge 7-ton sputnik, which means the Russians have terrific rocket power. We haven't been able to launch a missile of more than one ton.

Inside GOP Councils

Republican leaders are vigorously, some of them bitterly, split over political strategy.

Charlie Halleck, the tough GOP

House leader, wants to keep up a withering attack on the Democracats as "big spenders."

Old Guard Republicans support him, want to attack with the charge that the Kennedy program would cost billions, unbalance the budget,

Rusk remarked that the Russians showed no signs of relieving tensions in the world trouble spots. On the contrary, the Kremlin appeared to be stirring up trouble in such places as

Laos and the Congo in an apparent attempt to push the new administration into taking hasty action.

In the case of Laos someone suggested cutting the country into east and west partitions, like

Korea. The President shook his head.

Each assistant secretary delivered a brief report on his area. Kennedy asked several searching questions, but made few comments.

Sir:

The Teachers College at Frostburg is being operated in an efficient manner, not only in their ability to educate teachers, but doing so at a minimum of cost.

The college is beginning to expand along the lines which are proposed in a merger with the University of Maryland, and can in a few years reach the goal set by the university. With the cooperation of the State Board of Education and with the necessary funds appropriated by the state to expand the facilities at Frostburg, the number of subjects taught at Frostburg can be gradually increased without disrupting the present efficient faculty which is operating now.

The primary object of the Frostburg college is the training of teachers, and the other studies should only be added as facilities are provided for them.

I can see no reason for making the Frostburg college a branch of the University, and to do so would deprive many able scholars of the western part of the state the opportunity of getting a college education. As I understand a statement coming from the university the tuition fees at Frostburg would be increased several hundred dollars a year on an average, taking the student body as a whole. There are many hundreds of parents in Western Maryland who will not be able to pay the increased cost. Are we going to rob these future scholars of a higher education in order to comply with the recommendation of a commission?

The Frostburg college is well able to take care of any problem in connection with the expansion of their college, and the scholars will not have to pay tribute to the University of Maryland.

Beefing Up The Army's Airlift

President Kennedy's decision to beef up the Army's airlift capability should also strengthen in the "quiet diplomacy" by which he plans to deal with potential limited-war situations around the world.

As advocates of "brushfire" preparedness have long maintained, the Soviets and Red Chinese would be less likely to take dangerous liberties in Laos, the Congo and other remote trouble spots if the U.S. Army had greater airborne mobility to meet its global commitments.

In the Middle East crisis of 1958, Soviet belligerence evaporated in the face of swift U.S. intervention in Lebanon. But this was a comparatively simple operation involving the landing of U.S. Marines from the 6th Fleet and the short-haul transport of Army airborne troops from West Germany.

Though the crises in Laos and the Congo present infinitely greater logistical problems, U.S. capacity for quick response in an emergency will be enhanced by the 53 cargo and transport planes, including the first jets, which are to be assigned to the airlift fleet starting in July.

This greater readiness for limited action complements the nuclear missiles, bombers and submarines upon which the nation already has lavished billions.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Sectarian Education

William J. Ryan, Sr., of Brooklyn writes me:

"Mr. Sokolsky, many of us would appreciate an article or two by you on the question of public funds to aid private (sectarian) education . . ."

Nothing in the Constitution says anything about the separation of Church and State. Not one word appears either in the body of the Constitution or in its Amendments which can be correctly construed as limiting education to a secular curriculum. The only reference to the subject is in the First Amendment which contains the clause:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof: . . ."

The term, "an establishment of a religion," taken in its meaning when the Constitution was written, can only refer to an established church, namely, one that is recognized as official, say, such as the Anglican Church in Great Britain, the Roman Catholic Church in Brazil, Judaism in Israel. The term has nothing to do with the free exercise of religion by citizens who may accept any church of their choice and change from one religion to another. Nor does it in any way forbid a state to establish a religion as the State of Massachusetts taxed its citizens to support the Congregational Church up to 1833.

In fact, it has generally been held that religion is a matter for each state and not for the Federal Government to deal with. Sunday-closing laws are therefore passed or not passed by State Legislatures not by Congress; released time for public school pupils to be educated in the religion of their forefathers is a state not a national issue. Had the Mormons not got into a controversy with the Federal Government over bigamy, Utah could have had a state religion.

Religious institutions appeared at the very beginning of our history. The Episcopalians were here in 1607; the Roman Catholics in 1539; the Jews in 1654. The Congregationalists who became so important in New England appeared in America in 1620 and the Methodists in 1766.

The term separation of Church and State has gained excessive currency in recent years. Most of our early universities were established by religious groups, some to train their clergymen. Prior to the Revolutionary War, all the colleges and universities in America had been established by Protestant churches. In 1791, a Catholic college was established in Georgetown, which is now part of Washington, D. C., by Archbishop John Carroll of Maryland. The right of religious denominations to establish their own universities has never been questioned since the Dartmouth College case in 1819, in which the Chief Justice, John Marshall, held that a charter given to a college could not be transformed by acts of the State Legislatures.

This decision has never been changed either by constitutional Amendments or legislative action. Chancellor James Kent said of this case:

"... did more than any other single act proceeding from the authority of the United States to throw an impregnable barrier around all rights and franchises derived from the grant of government; and to give solidity and inviolability to the literary, charitable, religious, and commercial institutions of our country."

Since then, however, some of the sectarian universities such as Columbia which was Episcopalian or Princeton which was Presbyterian have become secular institutions. However, the Roman Catholics have established a large number of universities such as Fordham, Notre Dame, Villanova, etc. etc. The Jews have established Yeshiva University in New York.

All schools, colleges and universities, secular or denominational, are usually subsidized by both the state and federal governments by being exempted from taxation. Without this exemption, these institutions could not exist. Such large contributors to education as the various foundations usually do not discriminate against schools or colleges because of their religious or non-religious affiliations.

This is the situation as it exists at this moment. The present assumption by Roman Catholics is that President Kennedy's school aid program will be entirely secular and already Cardinal Spellman has voiced a protest. As, however, the program has not yet been presented to Congress in the form of an act of legislation, it is not final that the proposed school legislation in Congress will discriminate against religious educational institutions. The proposed New York State legislation to give each student $200 is really a measure to help support denominational colleges without raising the issue of the separation of Church and State.

An Inspiring Interdenominational Gathering

By David Lawrence

"I think it is appropriate that we pay tribute to that great constitutional principle which is enshrined in the First Amendment of the Constitution, the principle of religious independence, of religious liberty, of religious freedom. But I think it is also important that we pay tribute and acknowledge another great principle, and that is the principle of religious conviction. In this nation, freedom has no significance unless it is accompanied by conviction. And therefore the Puritans and the Pilgrims in my own section of New England, the Quakers of Pennsylvania, the Catholics of Maryland, the Presbyterians of North Carolina, the Methodists and the Baptists who came later, all shared these two great traditions which, like silver threads, run through the warp and the woof of American history . . ."

"While they came from a wide variety of religious backgrounds and held a variety of religious beliefs, each of our Presidents in his own way has placed a special trust in God. Those who were strongest, intellectually . . ."

"The guiding principle and prayer of this nation has been, is now and shall ever be 'In God We Trust.'

Just before the President's address, Senator Frank Lausche of Ohio and Representative Bruce Alegre of Texas spoke briefly in behalf of the Senate and House "breakfast groups" which meet regularly every week to discuss spiritual topics.

An impressive speech was given, too, by Dr. Billy Graham, who sat next to President Kennedy. Here are some excerpts from what the noted evangelist said:

"What are we to do at this hour? Which way are we to turn? Pope Leo XIII, in his famous message on labor, said: 'When a society is perishing, the true advice to give those who would restore it is to call it to the principles from which it sprang....'

"I'm convinced, after studying the race question, for example, in this country for several years, that we will never be able to legislate morals, and we can never legislate love. It must come from within the heart . . ."

"A society is no stronger than its individuals. It must start with you, and it must start with me. I think it is highly significant that the President and the Vice President and members of the Cabinet and Senate and House should be here at this hour, joining hands with governors throughout the nation to look to God. I'm certain this pleases the Court of Heaven, and without his help this nation is doomed . . ."

"I sense a new spirit in the world. I believe once again God has given to this nation a new opportunity under the leadership of our new President."

It was an unusual setting. In between speeches, there were readings from Scriptures—one of them a reading by Robert McNamara, the new Secretary of Defense. Nearby sat Adlai Stevenson, Secretary of Agriculture Freeman, Secretary of Labor Goldberg, Postmaster General Day, Secretary of the Treasury Dillon, Secretary of State Rusk, Secretary of Commerce Hodges.

The whole session lasted an hour and a half and, when it was over, the President and Vice President and Billy Graham stopped in to say a few words to a special meeting held concurrently for wives of the delegates and members of Congress. Mr. Kennedy got loud applause as he remarked with a smile:

"It seems to me that in the true Christian spirit next year we should all sit down together, and that we should have gentlemen and ladies pray and reason together, and not confine them in different rooms."

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

"PRESIDENT IKE"—That the Republican Party is out of power in Washington is plainly evident in this capital city—in many ways.

To the GOP National Committee, President John F. Kennedy is referred to as "that man in the White House." Its publicity department has created a new talking animal to replace the loquacious White House squirrel, "Tom Kitten," a mythical pet of 3-year-old Caroline. Tom needles Caroline's father about such matters as his Boston accent and touch football.

And there are more tangible signs of change. A heavy flow of mail continues to come to the White House addressed to "President" Dwight D. Eisenhower. Until President Kennedy issued firm orders, there was no one in the government to handle it, or to provide the clerical help, paper,

Care And Feeding Of Astronauts In Flight

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many people regard their home as "a bit of heaven on earth." Space travelers may feel the same way but there is a good possibility that they will reverse the situation if more than six months are spent wandering through the heavens. These men may be forced to make their own food, oxygen, and water by duplicating natural processes that take place on earth.

All the processes must be speeded up and performed in a closed system. Current research on algae is aimed in this direction. This seaweed will absorb carbon dioxide and form oxygen in the presence of light. It might serve also as a source of food.

We may not know what the space man will eat while traveling great distances or after he reaches his destination. But our air force is not going to be caught napping: the air research and development command is conducting much research, including dietary menus.

Nourishment varies with the time spent traveling. The needs for fuel, oxygen, and water are more important than food on a two or three day jaunt into space; and weight and space conservation is of the utmost importance. When a man eats all his meals at home, seven pounds of food are consumed including the weight of the inedible portions and the loss in preparation and packaging. This is not significant for short trips but would be on trips lasting more than three days.

The total weight of food can be cut to 3½ pounds by using dehydrated and concentrated edibles, packaged in lightweight containers. Oxygen is recovered from the inhaled carbon dioxide and water from the atmosphere and body wastes and purified for safe use.

A reluctant father was bugged by his wife into taking 10-year-old Willie (a monster) to a violin concert by the great Heifetz. After watching the maestro fiddle through two stunning numbers, Papa proposed, "Whaddya say we blow. Don't tell Mom and I'll treat you to a movie instead." Willie, surprisingly, refused to budge. "I wanna stay," he maintained, "till he sees that thing under his chin in half!"

The height of nonchalance was achieved by a titled book collector in England recently. Asked by a library committee if he'd allow his priceless first edition of Chaucer's Canterbury Tales (printed by Caxton in 1475) to be borrowed for an exhibition, his Lordship yawned, "Certainly, but give Gawd's sake, don't lose the damned thing!"

cause runaway inflation, lead to higher taxes.

But Republican liberals, led by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, prefer the opposite attack. They would like to accuse President Kennedy of failing to carry out his campaign pledges and of adopting the Eisenhower program as his own.

Mr. Nixon, titular leader of the party, is doing his best to keep the party in the center. Congressional leaders, however, have slammed the doors on Nixon and served notice that they intend to chart Republican Congressional policy themselves.

Kennedy At State Department

Here is what happened when President Kennedy turned up unexpectedly at a State Department staff meeting.

First he told the assembled assistant secretaries that he wanted to get to know them personally. Secretary of State Rusk then ordered the meeting to proceed as usual, beginning with a briefing from director of intelligence Hugh Cummings.

Cummings reported that both the Belgians and Czechs were smuggling arms to opposite sides in the Congo, which had led India to offer to send in a strong military force to help disarm both sides if the big powers would cooperate.

Rusk remarked that the Russians showed no signs of relieving tensions in the world trouble spots. On the contrary, the Kremlin appeared to be stirring up trouble in such places as Laos and the Congo in an apparent attempt to push the new administration into taking hasty action.

I think it is time to maintain what little we have left of our rights and not bow to the recommendation of a commission, which if put in effect would destroy what little independence we have left.

We have seen how we fare when nearly all members of a commission are from Baltimore and adjoining counties. We have seen the Cumberland race track closed after many years of successful racing. We have seen much of the state road program postponed, especially in Cumberland. It is not advisable to centralize too much authority in one place as there is always a temptation to abuse it.

If the people in this community who wish to give our scholars a fair deal, and the parents who wish to give their children a college education at a price they will be able to pay, it would be advisable to express your sentiments to your local newspaper and to your representative in the Maryland legislature.

Many of us do not like publicity but now is the time to stand up and be counted. The time to act is now if you wish to preserve the privilege of educating your children at a cost you can afford.

Fort Hill Tests Unbeaten Martinsburg Here Tonight

Bulldogs Seek 4th Win Over Local Quins

Coach Whitacre's Cagers Have Won 14 Consecutive Games

Martinsburg High School's undefeated Bulldogs come here tonight seeking a four-game sweep of games with Cumberland teams this season.

Coach George Whitacre's quint puts a 14-0 record on the line tonight when it winds up its series with the Fort Hill High School Sentinels who are playing .500 ball with a 6-6 record.

The Bulldogs won the first game from Fort Hill by the score of 66-51 and captured a pair from Allegany's Campers, 77-71 here and 72-64 in Martinsburg.

Martinsburg also has swept two-game series with Waynesboro, Frederick and Charles Town and won single games from Shepherdstown, South Hagerstown, North Hagerstown, Keyser and Westminister.

Coach Whitacre is at the helm of the Bulldogs for the 7th year. His teams have won 96 and lost 51, including the current 14-0 mark.

Three other high school games are scheduled for tonight in the tri-state area.

Second-ranked St. Bonaventure 18-11, honing for Monday night's key test at Providence, used 27 points by Tom Stith, 26 by Freddie Crawford and 20 by Whitey Martin for a 103-69 rout of Boston College. Fourth-ranked Bradley (16-4) snapped its doldrums and moved within a half game of Cincinnati in the Missouri Valley Conference scramble, whipping St. Louis 69-54 with Chet Walker scoring 31 points.

North Carolina No. 6, broke a two-game slump with a 93-78 romp over Wake Forest as York Larese scored 30 points and Doug Moe 25.

Memphis State, one of four teams signed for the National Invitation Tournament, made it 17-2 by clipping Villanova 78-74 in a Philadelphia Palstra match. Detroit (NIT) toppled Notre Dame in the national TV game 82-71, with Dave Debusschere firing 26 points, and De Paul (NIT) routed Tampa 101-68, getting 23 points from little Howie Karp. Another NIT club, Providence, may have been caught looking ahead to St. Bonaventure. The Friars lost their 37-game home-court string and their nine-game win streak, 78-76 to Rhode Island, current leader in the Yankee Conference.

The four teams advanced to the semi-finals by registering victories in preliminary games this past Saturday. Piedmont will clash with the Little Elks in the opener of this coming Saturday's doubleheader at 1:30 p.m., while Keyser will take the floor against the Little Highlanders in the 2:30 event.

Elik Garden won a pair of cross-town rival, North High, 67-30, defeated Fort Ashby in a morning contest, 40-36, then wrapped up its second decision in the afternoon, a 51-36 triumph over Bayard.

Keyser defeated Paw Paw, 54-

39, and Southern ousted Petersburg, 36-32, in other quarter-final contests on Saturday. Petersburg previously had bested Franklin, 31-25, last Thursday at Moorefield to gain the quarter-final round against Southern.

Sanders' 62 Ties Palmer For Phoenix Open Title

Pros Windup 72 Holes With Cards Of 270

18-Hole Playoff
Set Today; Fleck's
271 Worth $2,000

By HAL WOOD

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Doug Sanders, the man with the shortest swing in golf, shot a record-shattering round of 62 Sunday to catch the struggling Arnold Palmer and tie for the championship in the $30,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament.

The two men each finished 72 holes of golf with a score of 270-10 strokes under par. They will meet in an 18-hole playoff Monday.

Led By Eight Strokes

Palmer had started the day with an eight-stroke lead over Sanders. But it wound up with the National Open champion needing to and an eight-foot birdie putt on the last hole to tie the game.

Palmer had an erratic last nine holes and nearly lost the tournament on the 16th when he had to take a penalty stroke after his ball landed in bushes.

He had a par 70 Sunday compared with the brilliant effort by Sanders.

Sanders came in nearly an hour ahead of Palmer and sweated out the effort of the National Open Champion.

Tries For Eagle

Palmer was one foot off the green on the 18th hole with about a 30-foot putt for an eagle three on the par five, 230-yard hole. He went for it and the ball rolled about eight feet past the cup.

Then, with a gallery of 13,000 watching, he calmly holed out for the birdie and the deadlock.

"The big guy did just about the same thing when thought I had the tournament won last summer in Florida," said Sanders. "He used only 10 putts on the last nine holes to beat me out then. This time, he just got a tie."

Doug had nines of 29-33 for his brilliant effort. He knocked in one putt from 35 feet, two from 15 feet and four others of 10 feet or less.

Palmer had a two stroke lead over the field with only eight holes to go. Defending champion Jack Fleck was closest, followed by Sanders at that time.

Fleck, firing rounds of 68-67-69, finished in third place with a total of 271 strokes. He picked up a check for $2,000.

First place in this tournament is worth $4,300 and second place $3,000. In addition to the prize money Palmer and Sanders will split half of the gate money.

Ball Hits Girl

On the second hole, Palmer had hit his tee shot into a trap. He tried to come out around some trees and the ball arched across the fairway and hit a little 5-year-old girl on the head.

Palmer raced across the fairway, gathered the tot in his arms and laid her head on his shoulder.

When the ball hit the girl it bounced backward behind some towering tamarisk trees. Still visibly shaken by the incident Palmer waited for the crowd to be pulled back behind the ropes.

He then took a wedge, skied it high over the 60-foot trees, 80 yards to the green and the ball landed and stayed about three feet from the pin. He sank the putt for his par and received a tremendous hand from the throng of about 5,000.

"You won't see another shot like that all year," said his playing partner, Dave Marr.

Baltimore Defeats Central Y, 119-105

Central YMCA varsity cagers suffered their fourth defeat of the season Saturday night, bowing to a visiting Baltimore "Y" quint, 119-105, despite a 43-point performance by the locals' Charley McCullough.

Baltimore won the game at the foul line where the visitors converted 31 chances to Central YMCA's 15. Bill Hillman, led Baltimore with 28 tallies while Charlie Robinson tallied 23 for Cumberland to back up McCullough's effort.

Their 10-rounder, apparently the best bout on the week's schedule, will be televised nationally by ABC.

Tiger beat lanky Armstrong in 1959 and again last year, for the only two losses on Gene's list of 22 fights. Tiger recaptured the Empire crown last November by knocking out Wilfie Greaves in the ninth round at Edmonton, Alberta.

He has a 19-2 record; Tiger, a 39-12 list.

Helen Wills as champ and today

THEY SAY that Helen Wills Moody, in that celebrated battle for the U.S. women's tennis title in 1933, failed to congratulate the winner and, as one expert put it—Mrs. Moody had never lost a major match and she didn't know how to go about congratulating a winner.

True or false, Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's default, which followed a back injury, set off one of the highly-publicized feuds of the century.

After she walked off the court in that 1933 match with Miss Jacobs, Mrs. Moody retired temporarily and Miss Jacobs won the 1934 U.S. nationals.

But in 1935, Mrs. Moody, her back better, went to Wimbledon and so did Miss Jacobs. As fate would decree, the two met in the final and the match received world-wide attention.

There were slurs that Mrs. Moody had "quit" in that 1933 match because she hated to lose and felt that Miss Jacobs might beat her. Her claim was the injured back. Anyway, in the 1935 Wimbledon final Mrs. Moody was out to prove that she still was the GREATEST of all.

Mrs. Moody took the first set, 6-3. But Miss Jacobs came back and won the second, also 6-3. Miss Jacobs poured it on and, smothering Mrs. Moody's famed attack, led by 5-2 and needed only one point for victory.

It wasn't to be, however. Mrs. Moody won the next game and fought on and on and won five successive matches, the set, 7-5, and the championship.

HELEN NEWINGTON WILLIS, born at Centreville, Calif., October 6, 1905, the daughter of Dr. Clarence A. and Katherine Anderson Willis, probably was the GREATEST woman tennis player of all time.

She started to play the game at an early age; at 14 she was given a membership in the Berkeley Tennis club. She went to school in Vermont for awhile and then returned to California where she gained national recognition in 1921, then 16, as she won the U.S.A. girls championship. From then on her star ascended. In the next 10 years she won every women's title, seven times being the U.S. champion and six times the Wimbledon Queen. Coming back in 1935 she took the Wimbledon crown again and once more reigned in 1938.

During her career she held the U.S. singles and doubles crowns, won the French singles four times and won 18 and lost two in Wightman Cup matches. She retired in 1938 from tournament play.

SHE WAS proficient in art, a fine arts school in Boston, had exhibitions of her paintings. She also did fashion designing. She lives in Los Angeles today as Mrs. Helen Ruark.

Monti Captures Two-Man Bobsled Crown Fifth Time

Gary Sheffield, U.S.
Marine, Is Second
At Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Eugenio Monti of Italy, rocketing so fast his sled smashed into a tree beyond the finish line, won his fifth straight World Two-Man Bobsled championship Sunday with a record-shattering performance.

Gary Sheffield, a U.S. Marine from Lake Placid, finished a surprising second in the two-day, four-hour competition down the icy mile Olympic run. The other American sled, driven by Bill Dodge of New York, was seventh.

Monti's sled hardly touched the ground in the fourth and final heat as he and brakeman Sergio Sironi flashed down in one minute, 9.22 seconds — fastest official mark ever for a two-man sled. The sled was moving so fast that Sironi was unable to slow it during the 150-yard "braking area" beyond the finish. The sled smashed into a tree and Monti was cut slightly around the nose.

His cumulative time for four heats, 4:42.67, also was a record, well under the old mark of 4:52.83 set by American Stan Benham in 1957.

Sheffield did 4:45.74 and the crowd of nearly 6,000 cheered him all the way down on his final run as he sought to end Monti's bobsled dominatio. But his 1:10.41, good as it was, could not match Monti's final performance.

Tiger, Armstrong Clash Saturday

NOW YORK (UPI) — Middleweight contender Gene "Ace" Armstrong of Elizabeth, N.J., will try to avenge the only two defeats on his record next Saturday night at Madison Square Garden in a third fight with Nigerian Dick Tieger, champion of the British Empire.

Their 10-rounders, apparently the best bout on the week's schedule, will be televised nationally by ABC.

PARIS (AP) — Jannet III Sunday won the $30,000 Prix de Paris handicap trot at Vincennes race course, defeating Masina in a stetch duel.

Masina's strong finish was not enough to make up for a 50-meter handicap she ran under as last week's Prix d' Amérique winner, Lavandiere III was third.

Special Events Highlight Westernport-Luke Area '61 Heart Fund Campaign

WESTERNPORT—Various fund-raising events for the benefit of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association's 1961 drive have been announced by James Wills, campaign chairman for Westernport, Franklin and Luke.

Wills said yesterday that on Wednesday a Teen Age Valentine Dance will be held at the American Legion home here from 8 to 11 p.m. Jimmy Miller's Orchestra will provide music.

A Heart Fund dance is scheduled for Friday at the local Legion home. Miller's Orchestra again will furnish music and dancing will be held from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

A variety show will be held Sunday at the Devon Club in Luke. It will feature outstanding talent from the Tri-State area. Those appearing include the Miller orchestra, Les Clifford, Potomac Four, Carol Lee Kelly, Blue Angels Drum and Bugle Corps, and Sandra Rucker, who recently was a weekly winner on the Ted Mack Amateur Hour TV show.

On Friday, February 24, a basketball game will be staged at Bruce High School between Don Moran's Old Germans and the All-American Indians a highly publicized pro team with an outstanding record, Wills said. Pre-game and halftime shows will be played. Also on the agenda this month are blanket collections at the Allegany High School and Bruce High School basketball game; donations from students at area schools, donation collections at dances at the American Legion home and the fire hall, sale of candy and cakes at the Red Men home, Legion home and Green's Confectionery; a games party at the Legion every Monday during February; business cans for funds, plastic hearts collection, and a "Buck-Up" board at the Legion home.

The meetings were discontinued while repairs were being made to the scout hall, which was badly damaged by a falling tree.

The public is invited to attend. Admission will be by donation.

Scout Troop No. 30 Resumes Meetings

WESTERNPORT—Troop No. 30, Boy Scouts will resume meetings tonight according to James Rafter, scoutmaster.

The meetings were discontinued while repairs were being made to the scout hall, which was badly damaged by a falling tree.

The Heart drive will climax Sunday, February 26—Heart Sunday.

West Virginia Has Problems For Tourists

Visitors Continue To Tour State

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia has its tourist lure problems—depressed areas, bad roads and not enough recreational facilities. But the visitors continue to come to the Mountain State in record numbers.

Such is indicated in an analysis of the state's 1960 tourist trade by the Industrial & Publicity Commission. The annual report was released Sunday.

The survey estimated that 7,957,068 out-of-staters journeyed to West Virginia last year and spent approximately $290 million. This was compared to 7,450,626 and $270 million, respectively, in 1959.

The statistics are based on automobile checks and survey cards given to visitors at the various lodges, parks and other recreational points.

The commission does not claim the statistics are completely accurate. However, it is felt that if there is an error, the figures are "conservative."

As in previous years, the 1960 visitors cited West Virginia's scenery as the most valuable attraction. Over 41 per cent listed the scenery as the number-one attraction, while 26.3 per cent said improved roads are the greatest need. But 21 per cent said they were satisfied with their visit.

The neighboring states of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Maryland continued to send the largest number of persons to the State. But visitors were reported from every state and several foreign countries.

The average tourist party was made up of 3.62 persons last year and it spent an average of 4.83 days in the Mountain State. A total of $27.33 was spent per party per day.

Piedmont Library Elects

PIEDMONT — Mrs. Larry Patterson, Mrs. Harold Pugh, Roy Walker and John C. Harvey have been elected directors of the Piedmont library for three-year terms.

The board was enlarged for the coming year to include four members whose one-year terms were to expire. Re-elected members are Norman Baughman, Mrs. Calvin Lambert, James McHenry and Miss May Rose.

Holdover members are Mrs. Carleton Bell, Mrs. Harley Dixon, Mrs. Don Mellor, Mrs. Elmer Shaver, Mrs. Zena Hartman, Mrs. Esther Hoover, Mrs. Roy Johnson and Miss Frances Ott.

Mrs. Elmer Shaver was re-elected chairman; James McHenry, vice chairman; Miss Frances Ott, secretary and Mrs. Carleton Bell, treasurer.

Mrs. Bell read the treasurer's report and the budget for the year. The library is supported principally by the County United Fund, which contributed $1,233 for last year's budget. The 1961 budget amounts to $1,401.

The library has enrolled 301 members, of whom 75 are adults and 229 children. Last year 214 books were added, 122 for adults and 92 for children. The circulation for the year was 9,592 books. Children borrowed 6,388 and adults, 3,104.

Mrs. Shaver recommended that the library operate a children's story hour during the summer and conduct a Book Fair in the fall.

The West Virginia Library Commission has loaned the library a collection of 500 books. Every three months 75 new books are returned. Mrs. Shaver reported.

The board of directors will hold its next meeting March 10.

WESTERNPORT—Bond Pence, 147 Wood Street, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

Registration Of Jobless To Begin In Area

Maxine Clower Romney Expediter

ROMNEY, W. Va. — Maxine Clower, clerk of Hampshire County Court, Romney, has been notified by Gov. William W. Barron of West Virginia, that she has been appointed as expediter in registering applicants for unemployment in the governor's emergency employment program.

Registration days are set up for February 13, 16, 17 at the Hampshire County Court House.

In the telegram received by Miss Clower, Governor Barron stated that he had personally certified on Thursday, 536 men with 2,912 dependents who would begin work Tuesday.

The state road supervisor has been requested by the governor to supply the necessary stenographers for the registration.

A representative of the Department of Employment Security will also be present as a consultant for the three-day registration.

Class Presents Stole To Pastor

FROSTBURG—The Loyalty Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, met a recent evening.

Mrs. Bertha Arnold opened the meeting with prayer. Scripture was read by Mrs. Emma Keller, and readings were presented by Mrs. Bertha Arnold, Mrs. Pearl Close, Mrs. Leona Crowe, and Mrs. Mary Davis. The meeting was concluded with the reciting of the Lord's Prayer and class prayer. A social hour followed with refreshments.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Leona Crowe, a Lenten special, on March 9.

The class also presented a purple stole to the pastor Rev. Harold Morelock.

This is not true, he said, and the group expressed the opinion that the final decision should be by vote of the people.

Ladies Night will be held Thursday, Aug. 31, at 6:30 p.m. at the VFW home.

Dr. Leslie R. Miles Jr., chairman of the Rotary Ladies Night committee, has planned with his committee, Ronald Connor, William Orr and Edward Powell, to show movies of Lonaconing Rotary Club recreation, their family picnic of 1960, their Rotary-Lions Club softball game of 1960; and the Bedford District conference of April 1960.

Barron's two major tax proposals were the income tax and a 5 per cent across-the-board surtax on the state's gross sales tax. In addition, the Legislature approved early in the session a temporary $7 million increase in the consumer sales tax through Aug. 31.

Senate President Howard Carson of Fayetteville said the gross sales tax increase and Barron's programs which will be financed by the two tax proposals will get top priority in the next few weeks.

Barron recommended the $17.5 million in new taxes for such things as a Department of Commerce and an industrial development authority, $8.3 million in road improvements, $4 million for schools and vocational retraining and $1.5 million to continue the property reappraisal program.

But Barron's program won't be the only item to get the Legislature's attention. Among proposals still on the desks of legislative committees is that controversial liquor-by-the-drink resolution.

Apart from the governor's proposals, the Legislature will have to find ways to channel still another $6 million plus into the state's coffers, including $4 million plus for the next fiscal year's medical care program for the aged. New money will be needed also for distribution of additional surplus foods to some 300,000 needy.

This means that by the end of the session March 11, the lawmakers will have pumped about $29 million in new money into the state treasury—and about $25 million will be available in the next fiscal year starting July 1.

And the governor announced Friday that the first $500 will be hired under that program Tuesday. County courthouses will receive applications from West Virginia's jobless Wednesday, Thursday and Friday for an anticipated 5,000 jobs under the "crash" program.

Meanwhile, State Tax Commissioner Donald Carman laid plans for the organization of a Columbian Squires circle were taken recently when members of Piedmont Council 685, Knights of Columbus, met with students of St. Peter's School.

Speakers included Rev. George Pugh, James E. Kenny and Jerome Laffey, who will be chief counselor to the Squires.

Membership in the circle will be limited to boys between 12½ and 18 years of age.

A charter ceremony will be held late this month.

If you "picture" yourself as a model, be candid!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

So You Want To Be A Model?

Yearning to be a model? Then, dict the future—and the fortune—that you have the basic physical qualifications that could make for the best? About six busy years, your dream a reality. You have a photogenic face and figure.

You may not be beautiful, but you have the kind of bone structure and proportions that a camera must be able to interpret, to reveal a personality that can help to sell a client's wares. However glamorous its frosting, modeling is a very business-like business. So you must be just as business-like and objective in estimating yourself and your chances for making the grade in the trade.

Not only is it necessary that you be slimmer and taller than the average woman, but you also require a large-than-life measure of poise and self-confidence... for the cold eye of the camera can detect awkwardness and affection as fast as a shutter can wink. If you can still count yourself "in," at this point in your inventory, let's begin to probe your energy and endurance. To begin with, you need good health. To continue for any length of time, you need good health habits, so that your life and your looks can withstand the long hours, the difficult assignments, the heavy pressures and the uncertainties, financial and otherwise.

Chalk up one plus each for pliability, for patience, for pleasantness. Add bonus points for dependability and self-discipline. A well-wounded diet, regular sleep, faultless grooming habits, numberless social restraints will become as important as if your career depended on them. And it will! A capacity for self-control can be a kind of crystal ball... the kind that has made it possible to pre-

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I used to go with a girl but dropped her because she got too spooky.

This girl was sort of a spiritualist and she told me she'd put a hex on me for quitting her. I don't believe in evil spirits but this is what has happened:

I'm a mechanic in a machine shop and I operate a seven horsepower motor. Since I left that girl the motor will not run. Being a mechanic I took it apart every which way and could find nothing wrong. I took it to two other mechanics and they can't explain it either. The motor will run in THEIR shops, but not in mine!

My car has been giving me trouble, too. I can't get more than five miles to the gallon. I even changed carburetors but it didn't help. Can it be that she has cast a spell over my motors? How do you explain this? —VAN

DEAR VAN: No one has the power to cast a spell over anyone or anything. This is phony, voodoo malarkey. "Spellcasters" shake people up by scaring them half to death. Scared people can't function as well as they should and when things go wrong they persuade themselves it's because of the "spell."

I'm no mechanic, but I can tell you from here that there's something mechanically wrong with your motors. Trade them in on new ones. If something goes wrong with the new motors it will be attributable to more mechanical trouble... which would be rotten coincidence.

DEAR ANN: How can a foolish 16-year-old girl patch up the damage she has done to a boy's feelings?

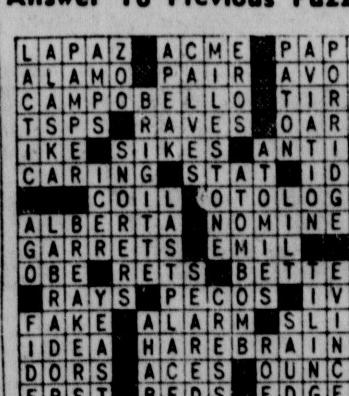

Howie asked me to a big dance. I accepted. A few of the me-owners at school said "But isn't he shorter than you?" Well, he is (about three inches) but I never thought of it. He's a swell kid, brilliant and so much fun. I never realized he was such a runt.

When we got to the dance I began to feel self-conscious and said I had a blister on my heel. I'm sure he caught on because I danc-

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

South West North East

Q. 1—As South you hold: 1♦ 2♦ Pass 3♣ 4♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

North East South West

1♦ 2♦ Pass Pass

Double Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three spades. You had almost raised in the first place but probably elected to pass. Now that your partner has shown a very strong hand, it is your duty to state that you had almost a raise by bidding one more spade than is necessary. A mere return to two spades possibly denotes nothing at all.

Q. 2—As third hand, after two passes, you hold:

◆ AK ♥ K Q J 6 ♦ J 8 6 5 3 ?

What is your opening bid?

A—One heart. While, normally, a six card suit should be bid before a five card suit, we would make an exception in this case. The weakness is in the diamonds. We consider having six card suit as the equivalent of a five card suit and would therefore open with the major.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

◆ AQJ 2 ♥ K J 5 ♦ AKQ 6 3 ♦ 7

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades, forcing to game. In support of hearts your hand is worth 20 points, and with a fit already indicated you should insist upon a game contract. A bid of only one spade could be passed by responder.

Q. 4—As South you hold:

♦ K 8 3 ♦ 7 2 ♦ ♦ Q 9 8 5 ♦ A 10 5

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ Pass 2♦ Pass

3♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Three no trump. You have maximum values for your raise and should therefore accept partner's game invitation. With your balanced hand containing strength in the minors it might be easier to reach for nine tricks instead of ten. If partner's holding is very unbalanced he may still return to spades.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♦ A 10 9 5 4 ♦ K 9 8 7 4 ♦ A 2

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass 1♦ Dble

Pass 2♦ Pass 3♦

What do you bid now?

A—Four clubs. Inasmuch as you are forced to proceed to game, this is the logical step. A rebid of four hearts would be dangerous in that it might suggest to partner that you have a better suit. From partner's failure to bid three no trump over three hearts, you may deduce he has a long and powerful two suit.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♦ A 10 9 8 5 ♦ A 10 6 5 4 ♦ 2 ♦ 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ Pass 1♦ Pass

3♦ Pass 3♦ Pass

4♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Five clubs. Inasmuch as you are forced to proceed to game, this is the logical step. A rebid of four hearts would be dangerous in that it might suggest to partner that you have a better suit. From partner's failure to bid three no trump over three hearts, you may deduce he has a long and powerful two suit.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♦ K 9 6 4 ♥ K J 9 ♦ K J 9 8 7 ♦ 7

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass Pass 1♦ Dble

Pass 2♦ Pass 3♦

What do you bid now?

A—Partner has shown a very strong hand by doubling and then bidding at the level of three. As your hand, containing nine points, is just a jack short of an average hand, you should therefore be optimistic about a game and the recommendation is three no trump. Partner should realize your spade stopper is doubtful; since you did not try to trump on the first round.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♦ A 10 9 8 5 ♦ A 10 6 5 4 ♦ 2 ♦ 4 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ Pass 1♦ Pass

3♦ Pass 3♦ Pass

4♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Five clubs. Inasmuch as you are forced to proceed to game, this is the logical step. A rebid of four hearts would be dangerous in that it might suggest to partner that you have a better suit. From partner's failure to bid three no trump over three hearts, you may deduce he has a long and powerful two suit.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"It's a REAL open house now! They just pushed down the south wall!"

"There's no chance of a conflict of interests in my appointment, gentlemen!... Everything I had been out of my control since the day I was married!..."

"Mr. Wilson says someday I'm gonna be a big stringbean like you!"

If you "picture" yourself as a model, be candid!

Secrets Of Charmby John Robert Powers*So You Want To Be A Model?

Yearning to be a model? Then, dict the future—and the fortune—let's assume right from the start of many Powers models.

What does the future hold, then, for the best? About six busy years, for most of them . . . during which period they are well-paid for full-time modeling. A few outstanding models have been able to stay on top for ten years, but they are rare. That's because versatility is a rarity in itself . . . and only a few are so blessed.

Afterward, the best of the "best" have found success in many other fields. They've been preparing all along for the days when their modeling days are over. During lush periods, they've saved enough money to tide them over the lean months. What they've spent most is TIME, in education, in snatching every chance to vary their experience, in achieving satisfaction and stature as homemakers. Because they recognized early the limitations in modeling, they took every advantage of its limitless possibilities as a stepping stone.

Not only is it necessary that you be slimmer and taller than the average woman, but you also require a large-than-life measure of poise and self-confidence . . . for the cold eye of the camera can detect awkwardness and affectation as fast as a shutter can wink.

If you can still count your "in," at this point in your inventory, let's begin to probe your energy and endurance. To begin with, you need good health. To continue for any length of time, you need good health-habits, so that your life and your looks can withstand the long hours, the difficult assignments, the heavy pressures and the uncertainties, financial and otherwise.

Chalk up one plus each for pliability, for patience, for pleasantness. Add bonus points for dependability and self-discipline. A well-wounded diet, regular sleep, faultless grooming habits, numberless social restraints will become as important as if your career depended on them. And it will! A capacity for self-control can be a kind of crystal ball . . . the kind that has made it possible to pre-

—GIGI

DEAR GIGI: Put on your high heels and walk over to the boy and tell him exactly what you told me. Tell him you'd love the motor will not run. Being a chance to date him again and mechanic I took it apart every which way and could find nothing wrong. I took it to two other mechanics and they can't explain it either. The motor will run in THEIR shops, but not in mine!

DEAR ANN: My brother and his wife call themselves "souvenir hunters." I have another name for them. Please tell me if I'm right.

They take towels, silverware, ashtrays and whatever they can get in a pocketbook or suitcase out of hotels, restaurants, off trains and planes, private clubs and so on. The linen and silver is all clearly marked "Hilton Hotels, Sheraton, New York Central" and so on. These people have children who can read and I think they are setting a poor example.

Am I right, or am I overly critical because I want to consider myself better than they are—as my husband says?

—NOT BUDGING

DEAR NOT: Silverware, ashtrays and linens are provided as part of the service. They are not meant to be carried away as souvenirs.

It's very confusing to youngsters to be told they must not steal, when their parents blithely lift property and bring it home as if it belonged to them.

FAR NORTH FESTIVAL

Youngster, bundled up in parka and muffler, watches festivities.

Spectators line snow-covered street in The Pas to watch start of 15-mile freight dog race. Each sled is loaded with three building blocks and 120-pound sack of flour.

Tea-brewing contestants keep their "pots" a-boiling. Each man has to cut wood, make a fire, melt snow, boil water, then brew tea. First producer of tea is winner.

Winter is harsh and long in Northern Manitoba. Icy winds sweep the broad plains, temperatures plummet to far below zero, and snow lies deep on the land. But it does not mean complete isolation for the hardy woodsmen, trappers and Indians who live in that part of the Canadian province.

Each year, when winter is at its peak, they leave their huts and cabins and converge on The Pas for the Trappers' Festival, using dog sled, or other means of conveyance, to get to the festive town. Some travel as far as 400 miles. Even blizzards can't stop the festival from going on, or the people from getting there.

The festival lasts three full days. The main event is the world's championship dog derby, a grueling race of three 50-mile heats for sled dogs and their drivers. Other events to keep the visitors and participants in a happy mood are competitions for muskrat skinning, tea brewing contests, bannock making, foot races, music, and dancing in the street. It is one of the big yearly events of the Far North.

Snow-covered street is converted into a dance floor.

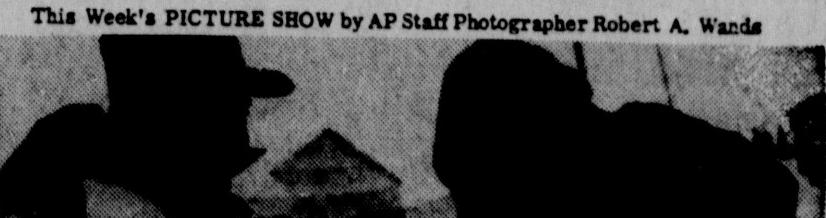

In muskrat-skinning competition, prizes were awarded for best job of skinning and cleaning the fur-bearing animals.

Dogs lie exhausted in the snow after finishing the freight dog sled race.

Parking Meter Program Will Be Considered

Fleming To Present Plan To Council

Modernization and extensions of the city's parking meter system will be recommended to the Mayor and Council by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming.

He said he will ask for permission to purchase about 300 new parking meters to put the plan into operation.

Mr. Fleming said about 185 meters which are now being used are obsolete and cannot be repaired since the company which made them has gone out of business.

He said another 150 meters in use take pennies as well as nickels and dimes and that he wants to eliminate the use of pennies.

Mr. Fleming said the city will not lose any revenue and should pick up a bit, due to the elimination of pennies.

May Meter Lot

Planned for outlying areas, such as Hanover, Polk, Salem, Commerce, Williams and Cumberland streets, are meters which will allow up to five hours of parking. The devices would take from one to five nickels or a quarter.

Mr. Fleming said he also would like to meter spaces at the Girl Scout House. He estimated there is room for 65 meters in the area. The plan calls for installing one to five-hour meters in the spot which now offers free parking.

There would be no direct outlay in meters placed in outlying areas, the commissioner said, as they would be installed by the company on a 50-50 income basis paid for.

Gets Complaints

Mr. Fleming said he is also considering placing parking meters on Washington Street, from the east side of Prospect Square to Smallwood Street.

These also, he said, would provide from one to five hours of parking, and would allow people who have business at the Allegany County Court House a chance to park in the area.

There have been many complaints, he said, from people who have to go to the building but are unable to find a place to park.

Some decision will have to be made, he added, on parking in the rear of the Court House, since fire equipment cannot get through.

Mr. Fleming said he believes the extension of the parking meter plan will make it easier for residents of the area to shop in Cumberland and will curb all-day parking in spaces set aside for the convenience of shoppers.

MSTA Blasts Tawes' Action

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland State Teachers Association has joined Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., State superintendent of schools, in condemning the support of Gov. Tawes for a proposal to make Frostburg State Teachers College a branch of the University of Maryland.

Milson C. Raver, executive secretary of the MSTA, said this weekend he was "shocked" that Tawes "would do such an about-face after he had just asked the Legislative Council to study the issue."

Last week, Pullen had charged that Tawes' endorsement of the merger proposal was a reflection of "political pressures."

The proposal arose when a group of political, civic, business and labor representatives of Western Maryland announced support of the merger idea. Tawes said Friday he would urge legislative action to provide for the reorganization.

The current dispute has opened wounds that resulted from a dispute last summer over the recommendations of a study group headed by Edwin M. Warfield 3d.

The Warfield report recommended merger of Towson, Salisbury and Frostburg State Teachers Colleges with the University of Maryland. The proposal brought such heavy attack, however, that Gov. Tawes agreed to postpone decision pending further study.

How Lincoln Marked 52d Birthday 100 Years Ago

By ALBERT D. DARBY
News Staff Writer

Today most state and county employees are enjoying a holiday in observance of the 152d anniversary of the birth in Kentucky in 1809 of Abraham Lincoln, 16th President of the United States.

Because this is the beginning of the Civil War Centennial observance, thoughts of many persons interested in American history are reverting just 100 years.

As he observed his 52d birthday 100 years ago, Mr. Lincoln had not yet assumed the office of President. Until fairly recent times, a new President did not begin his term until March 4 of the year after his election. Only the last four Presidents have been inaugurated on January 20 and the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt did not begin his first term until March 4, 1933.

Mr. Lincoln was not yet an eminent figure and his birthday was naturally ignored. Returning to the present time, few persons are aware of the birthday of our newest President, John F. Kennedy. He was born on May 29, 1917, so will observe his 44th birthday this year.

One hundred years ago, the President-elect was in the midst of a 12-day train trip from Springfield, Ill., to Washington on his birthday.

Some 1,000 persons had been on hand at Springfield to greet Mr. Lincoln when he departed at 8:30 a.m.—February 11, 1861, the day before his birthday.

He was in Cincinnati, Ohio, to celebrate his 52d birthday. There he addressed a number of border-state Democrats in the following words recorded by newspapers a century ago:

"We mean to leave you alone and in no way to interfere with your institutions . . ."

The day before, addressing Republicans in Indianapolis, he had spoken differently:

"What mysterious right to play the tyrant is conferred on a district of country with its people by merely calling it a state?" That comment was prompted by the fact that seven Southern states already had seceded from the Union and were about to establish the Confederate States of America.

Even while Mr. Lincoln traveled on the trip which eventually brought him to Washington on February 23, some 131 delegates from 21 states of the North and South were attending a Peace Commission as a last-ditch effort to avert the Civil War. They met at Washington's historic Willard Hotel for three weeks beginning February 4, and former President John Tyler of Virginia presided.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Everline, Bristol, Tenn., announce the birth of a son there Friday. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Rupp, Frostburg. The paternal grandfather is Harold Everline of LaVale.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Sanders, Oakdale, announce the birth of a daughter Friday in Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Summers, Lonaconing, a son February 6 in Miners Hospital.

State Taxmen To Give Help With Returns

Will Visit Several Areas This Week

This week representatives of the local office of the Comptroller of the Treasury of Maryland will begin visiting Oakland and communities of Allegany County to assist taxpayers in preparing state income tax returns for 1960.

Edward V. Welsh, manager of the local office at 9 Market Street, said the representatives will be at the Court House in Oakland on Wednesday.

Other visitors in Allegany County are as follows:

February 16 and 17, the City Building in Westernport; February 20, First National Bank in Bartons; February 21, Liberty Trust Company branch in Lonaconing; February 23 and 24, Fidelity Savings Bank, Frostburg; February 27 and 28, March 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10, Devon Club in Luke.

The representatives will be at the local office from March 13 to April 17. This year, said Mr. Welsh, taxpayers will get a two-day extension for filing returns. The usual filing date, April 15, falls on Saturday, thus the extension till the following Monday.

During the past few weeks business has been rather brisk at the local office, according to Mr. Welsh who said over 100 returns had been processed daily.

While the representatives are on the road during the next three weeks, activities at the local office will be limited to accepting money by the cashier, advising taxpayers and giving information by telephone.

Anyone desiring to file delinquent returns may call at the local office during that period, said Mr. Welsh. He said a backlog of returns of the past week or so would be taken care of during the period.

The local office will be closed today in observance of Lincoln's birthday.

Those who wish to seek information by telephone from the local office are asked to call PA 4-3223 or PA 4-3228.

Haines On Panel At National Meet Of Principals

Dr. W. Ardell Haines, principal of Allegany High School, is the only representative of Allegany County at the 45th annual convention of the National Association of Secondary School Principals which started Saturday in Detroit and concludes on Wednesday.

The building normally houses four buses, but only two buses were in the quarters at the time. One of these is a school bus and the other is a large transit bus. Fortunately, Mr. Markwood said, "no one was injured and damage to the two vehicles was slight. A large dent appears on one bus and lights were knocked from the other. A workman had just pulled his car from the garage after putting on chains and escaped injury."

Mr. Markwood did not place an estimate on the loss. "We were all so busy trying to maintain our schedules that we gave no thought to the volume of snow that was accumulating on this large expanse of flat roof," he said.

The company maintained all its schedules this winter, with one exception. One of the lines buses was held up in a traffic jam on Greene Street Thursday.

Water Company Elects Tonight

MT. SAVAGE — The stockholders of the Mt. Savage Water Company will meet tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the Mt. Savage Fire Hall, according to Magistrate Thomas Stephen, president.

Annual reports, plans for the review of the boards of control and election of officers are on the agenda. Judge Stephen said this is an important meeting that had been converted to a annual meeting of all stockholders and interested persons should attend.

Dr. Haines left Cumberland Friday evening in a special B&O car with other delegates from Maryland.

A hearing for the club scheduled before Trial Magistrate Edward Flanigan in Frostburg last Wednesday was postponed because of weather conditions.

Heart Dance Tonight

Henry Hart Post 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold its annual public dance for the benefit of the Heart Association tonight from 9 p.m. to midnight. Music will be by the Broadwater Duo.

Tickets for the dinner are almost sold out, Mr. Beall reported.

George R. Hughes Jr. and Thomas Williams will serve as co-chairmen of the dinner.

Getty Will Ask Jury Trial For DAV

James S. Getty, state's attorney, said last night that he will ask for a jury trial in the case of The Disabled American Veterans Club of Frostburg on a charge of selling beer to minors.

A hearing for the club scheduled before Trial Magistrate Edward Flanigan in Frostburg last Wednesday was postponed because of weather conditions.

Local Man Found Dead

Charles Lufkin, 42, a field representative of the Social Security Administration here, was found dead of a gunshot wound at his home, 553 Patterson Avenue, early yesterday afternoon.

A World War II veteran, he was found dead in the basement of his home by his wife, Mrs. Martha W. (Watters) Lufkin.

County Investigator Edwin R. Lufkin said a verdict of suicide was issued. He said Mr. Lufkin placed a .45 caliber service pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger.

Death resulted from a laceration of the brain due to the self-inflicted gunshot wound, the medical examiner's office said.

County officials said they were told Mr. Lufkin had been despondent.

A native of Verona, Maine, Mr. Lufkin resided in Baltimore before coming here three months ago. He had been employed as a Social Security field representative since 1951.

He held the rank of captain in the Air Force during World War II and served as a bombardier in the 8th Air Force.

Survivors include his widow, formerly of Charles Town, W. Va., and two daughters, Martha and Jane, at home.

The body is at the Kight Funeral Home here.

Fog And Ice Reported On Area Roads

Season's Snowfall Totals 63.8 Inches

Western Maryland highways were almost bare last night after crews removed the 2½ to 4½ inches of snow which began to fall late Saturday night.

But officials advised there were still slick spots on the roads and that fog was making driving on Route 40 west of Frostburg hazardous.

As the thermometer dipped below freezing here last night, city police received a number of complaints of icy spots, chiefly where water from melting snow froze.

Or accept labor's more liberal program to boost the benefit rate from $35 to $45 a week and increase the period in which benefits may be drawn from 26 to 30 weeks as endorsed by President Kennedy?

The issue may come to a head Tuesday when the Senate votes on labor amendments to a bill backed by business and industry forces to limit compensation benefits and boost them slightly.

The Senate has already given 18-10 tentative approval to the industry-backed bill. Sen. Joseph V. Mach, D-Balto 2nd, offered the labor-backed amendments to the bill Friday. The Senate accepted them and debate was put off until the Tuesday session.
